"Men are from Mars and women are from Venus-- but when it comes to the workplace, everyone needs to come down to Earth (at least in the workplace). While countless books are aimed at teaching women to thrive in business, very few are simply aimed toward helping men to lead the journey toward gender inclusion in the workplace. It's time for men to join women in working toward a new future--and Bonnie Fetch and Jessica Poliner are just the successful women to help lead them on this journey. In (Un)Skirting the Issues, Fetch and Poliner present thoughtful tips for Well-Intentioned Men to recognize and

address the unconscious bias, stereotypes, and ingrained expectations
that affect women today.
Pairing personal stories and examples with authoritative research and practical tips, along with a healthy dose of humor, this guide gives men the tools they need to influence cultural and
organizational change.
Working together, men
and women can understand, approach,

change--and begin
building an inclusive work environment that benefits everyone." -- Back cover.

PREFACE. THE Author of this very practical treatise on Scotch Loch - Fishing desires clearly that it may be of use to all who had it.
He does not pretend to have written anything new, but to have attempted to put what he has to say in as readable a form as possible.
Everything in the way of the history and habits of fish has been studiously avoided, and technicalities have been used as sparingly as possible. The writing of this book has afforded him pleasure in his leisure moments, and that pleasure would be much increased if he knew that the perusal of it would create any bond of sympathy between himself and the angling community in general. This section is interleaved with blank sheets for the readers notes. The Author need hardly say that any suggestions addressed to the case of the publishers, will meet with consideration in a future edition. We do not pretend to write or enlarge upon a new subject. Much has been said and written-and well said and written too on the art of fishing but loch-fishing has been rather looked upon as a second-rate performance, and to dispel this idea is one of the objects for which this present treatise has been written. Far be it from us to say anything against fishing, lawfully practised in any form but many pent up in our large towns will bear us out when we say that, on the whole, a days loch-fishing is the most convenient. One great matter is, that the loch-fisher is dependent on nothing but enough wind to curl the water, - and on a large loch it is very seldom that a dead calm prevails all day, -and can make his arrangements for a day, weeks beforehand whereas the stream-fisher is dependent for a good take on the state of the water and however pleasant and easy it may be for one living near the banks of a good trout stream or river, it is quite another matter to arrange for a days river-fishing, if one is looking forward to a holiday at a date some weeks ahead. Providence may favour the expectant angler with a good day, and the water in order but experience has taught most of us that the good days are in the minority, and that, as is the case with our rapid running streams, -such as many of our northern streams are, -the water is either too large or too small, unless, as previously remarked, you live near at hand, and can catch it at its best. A common belief in regard to loch-fishing is, that the tyro and the experienced angler have nearly the same chance in fishing, - the one from the stern and the other from the bow of the same boat. Of all the absurd beliefs as to loch-fishing, this is one of the most absurd. Try it. Give the tyro either end of the boat he likes give him a cast of ally flies he may fancy, or even a cast similar to those which a crack may be using and if he catches one for every three the other has, he may consider himself very lucky. Of course there are lochs where the fish are not abundant, and a beginner may come across as many as an older fisher but we speak of lochs where there are fish to be caught, and where each has a fair chance. Again, it is said that the boatman has as much to do with catching trout in a loch as the angler. Well, we dont deny that. In an untried loch it is necessary to have the guidance of a good boatman but the same argument holds good as to stream-fishing...

The analysis and sorting of large numbers of cells with a fluorescence-activated cell sorter (FACS) was first achieved some 30 years ago. Since then, this technology has been rapidly developed and is used today in many laboratories. A Springer Lab Manual Review of the First Edition: "This is a most useful volume which will be a welcome addition for personal use and also for laboratories in a wide range of disciplines. Highly recommended."

Travel Beyond the Brink

McGraw-Hill Humanities, Social Sciences & World Languages

This book is dedicated to the memory of Professor Azizur Rahman Chowdhury. The book discusses some notable debates in the arena of international trade law and globalisation. It looks at the basic structure of the WTO, its function, and decision-making, and explores key economic and legal concepts underpinning the WTO, including Most-Favoured Nation Treatment and National Treatment. The need of the hour is to discuss tariff barriers and non-tariff barriers, as they assist in promoting economic development.

Besides these, the WTO attempts to control illegal trade practices, including dumping and subsidies, which are also pertinent topics in the current climate. The book examines many of these issues through exploring the jurisprudence and regulatory framework of WTO. It examines the existing WTO jurisprudence to reconcile trade liberalisation with other societal values and interests. Furthermore, it highlights the regulation of international trade in agricultural products.

Overall, this book shows that international trade law of the WTO is not a self-contained discipline, but has clear connections with other social, economic, and environmental subjects. The WTO interacts with these issues, and thus the book discusses, clarifies and identifies its relationship with human rights, intellectual property rights and the environment. It discusses the following topics in single chapters; Trade, Globalisation and Economic Policy; WTO and Environment; WTO and Human Rights; WTO and Regulation of International Trade in Agricultural Products; WTO and Developing Countries. The book provides a unique, interdisciplinary, and refreshing approach to the study of international trade law and the WTO. The National Directory of Addresses and Telephone Numbers Power House Books

Manhattan's dreamscape is the largest of the American success stories. Tourists come looking for excitement and a touch of high culture, businessmen come to prove themselves in the world's toughest market, politicians gather to debate global issues. Our world capital is also a magnet for creative spirits. The "Big Apple" never disappoints; it is the packed arena where art and entertainment, commerce and finance, sport and religion all battle together for the American soul. You hear the echoes of a long past everywhere in New York and feel the presence of strong personalities, wild deeds, and great collective events. From rural Dutch village of the seventeenth century to teeming metropolis in the late twentieth, New York City has mirrored and magnified the evolving American scene. For 350 years, the city has served as subject and inspiration for generations of American artists. Some of the most talented have created glorious city scenes; and some of the best of those are captured here. Enjoy the many faces and moods of New York: Hippolyte Sebron's horse-drawn trucks racing through the snow to a fire on Lower Broadway in the mid-nineteenth century; John Sloan's working-class women chatting on the rooftop in the early twentieth; a dramatic urban nightscape by Georgia O'Keeffe - and many more. No other city has been painted, sculptured, and photographed so often and to such effect. In this classic gift volume, the romance and reality of city life is celebrated in 41 color plates, with text by Grace Glueck, for many years a reporter and writer on art for the New York Times. Author of the recently published Brooklyn: People and Places, Past and Present, Glueck lives in Manhattan.
