Princeton University Press

Este libro forma parte de la colección Supervivencia, conformada por tres volúmenes teórico-prácticos, cada uno enfocado a la gestión del riesgo o de la crisis en diferentes campos en los que el ser humano vive, se transporta, trabaja o se divierte: supervivencia urbana («Araracuara»), de campo («Curupira») y en medio acuático y contra el ahogamiento («Tucunaré»). «Araracuara» está dirigido principalmente a los habitantes de áreas urbanas o semiurbanas, vulnerables y expuestas a diferentes tipos de riesgos e incertidumbres, zonas que en Latinoamérica y el Caribe crecen de forma desordenada, en ambientes inseguros, de espaldas al medioambiente debido a un modelo de vida basado en el consumo a gran escala, que incide directamente en la destrucción de ecosistemas. En uno de sus informes, la ONU hace énfasis en que «el grado de conocimiento del "riesgo" depende en gran medida de la cantidad y calidad de la información disponible y de las distintas maneras en que las personas perciben el peligro»<sup>1</sup>. «Araracuara» es una herramienta teórico-práctica fácil de consultar, con el fin de minimizar la incertidumbre y gestionar una crisis de supervivencia cuando sea necesario, teniendo en cuenta diferentes variables que se presentan en una emergencia de tipo natural o producida por el hombre, como aquellos en las que:

- La capacidad de reacción de los países ante una emergencia se ve colapsada o limitada.
- La afectación a los servicios públicos –tales como la saturación en las redes hospitalarias, limitaciones en suministros

e insumos médicos y medicinas, la acumulación de basuras, los cortes de energía y gas o daños en infraestructura– afectan el suministro de agua potable, entre otras.

- No existe una cultura de gestión del riesgo –que incluye la capacitación desde los primeros años–, debido a que la gente la percibe como una responsabilidad del Gobierno.
- La sociedad carece de preparación adecuada para enfrentar una emergencia médica básica o de otro tipo, mientras llega la ayuda o para actuar si esta no llega (no hay que esperar el colapso del sistema).
- Las normas o procedimientos para enfrentar las diferentes emergencias no están disponibles para todos ni son socializadas de forma adecuada a la población en general.
- La capacidad de autosuficiencia en casa para enfrentar una emergencia es muy limitada o no se cuenta con ella ni con un plan adecuado para abandonar el refugio cuando sea necesario.

A Neotropical Companion Emerald Group Pub Limited

Why have so many central and inner cities in Europe, North America and Australia been so radically revamped in the last three decades, converting urban decay into new chic? Will the process continue in the twenty-first century or has it ended? What does this mean for the people who live there? Can they do anything about it? This book challenges conventional wisdom, which holds gentrification to be the simple outcome of new middle-class tastes and a demand for urban living. It reveals gentrification as part of a much larger shift in the political economy and culture of the late twentieth century.

Documenting in gritty detail the conflicts that gentrification brings to the new urban 'frontiers', the author explores the interconnections of urban policy, patterns of investment, eviction, and homelessness. The failure of liberal urban policy and the end of the 1980s financial boom have made the end-of-the-century city a darker and more dangerous place. Public policy and the private market are conspiring against minorities, working people, the poor, and the homeless as never before. In the emerging revanchist city, gentrification has become part of this policy of revenge.

Manual de supervivencia en la mar Del Rey

The classic work on the evaluation of city form. What does the city's form actually mean to the people who live there? What can the city planner do to make the city's image more vivid and memorable to the city dweller? To answer these questions, Mr. Lynch, supported by studies of Los Angeles, Boston, and Jersey City, formulates a new criterion—imageability—and shows its potential value as a guide for the building and rebuilding of cities. The wide scope of this study leads to an original and vital method for the evaluation of city form. The architect, the planner, and certainly the city dweller will all want to read this book.

Ethnography and Qualitative Design in Educational Research Harvard University Press

Soaring income inequality and unemployment, expanding populations of the displaced and imprisoned, accelerating destruction of land and water bodies: today's socioeconomic and environmental dislocations cannot be fully understood in the usual terms of poverty and injustice, according to Saskia Sassen. They are more accurately understood as a type of expulsion—from professional livelihood, from living space, even from the very biosphere that makes life possible. This hard-headed critique updates our understanding of economics for the twenty-first century, exposing a system with devastating consequences even for those who think they are not vulnerable. From finance to mining, the complex types of knowledge and technology we have come to admire are used too often in ways that produce elementary brutalities. These have evolved into predatory formations—assemblages of knowledge, interests, and outcomes that go beyond a firm's or an individual's or a government's project. Sassen draws surprising connections to illuminate the systemic logic of these expulsions. The sophisticated knowledge that created today's financial "instruments" is paralleled by the engineering expertise that enables exploitation of the environment, and by the legal expertise that allows the world's have-nations to acquire vast stretches of territory from the have-nots. Expulsions lays bare the extent to which the sheer complexity of the global economy makes it hard to trace lines of responsibility for the displacements, evictions, and eradications it produces—and equally hard for those who benefit from the system to feel responsible for its depredations.

This "investigative magnum opus" offers a jaw-dropping history of Mexican drug cartels as it transports readers to the frontlines of the 'war on drugs' in Latin America (Los Angeles Times). “A riveting story . . . [from] an incredibly brave journalist.” —NPR The “war on drugs” has so far cost more than 60,000 lives. Hernández explains in riveting detail how Mexico became a base for the mega-cartels of Latin America and one of the most violent places on the planet. At every turn, Hernández names not just the narcos, but also the politicians, functionaries, judges, and entrepreneurs who have collaborated with them. In doing so, she reveals the mind-boggling depth of corruption in Mexico’s government and business elite.

Hernández became a journalist after her father was kidnapped and killed and the police refused to investigate without a bribe. She gained national prominence in 2001 with her exposure of excess and misconduct at the presidential palace, and previous books have focused on criminality at the summit of power, under presidents Vicente Fox and Felipe Calderón. The product of 5 years’ investigative reporting—and the subject of intense national controversy—Narcoland is a publishing and political sensation in Mexico.
