THE HEALTH ASSESSMENT QUESTIONNAIRE?

The Health Assessment Questionnaire (HAQ) was originally developed in 1978 by James F. Fries, MD, and colleagues at Stanford University. It was one of the first self-report functional status (disability) measures and has become the dominant instrument in many disease areas, including arthritis.

A health questionnaire is usually used to record the medical history of a patient. A questionnaire contains a series of questions that the patient would be required to answer. Based on the answers provided by the patients, the physician or the doctor would get a clear idea of the medical condition. This would help the doctor in getting an insight into the diagnosis and would also help determine the course of treatment.
