
Human Trafficking In South Africa Unesco

A Holistic Social Work Intervention Programme for Women Survivors of Human Trafficking in South Africa
 A Multidimensional Approach
 Data and Research on Human Trafficking Hidden in Plain Sight
 The South African and Mozambican Experience
 Long Walk to Nowhere
 A Comparative Legal Study
 Long Walk to Nowhere
 Understanding the Dimensions of Human Trafficking in Southern Africa : Research Report
 Human Trafficking in South Africa
 Tsireledzani!
 Getting to Grips with Trafficking Child Abuse and Neglect Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Understanding Global Slavery
 Human Rights and Trafficking in Persons Trafficking in Human Beings, Especially Women and Children, in Africa Global Report on Trafficking in Persons 2020
 The South African and Mozambican Experience
 Bibliography of Research-Based Literature
 Human Trafficking and Security in Southern Africa
 Sex Work and Human Trafficking in a South African City
 The Politics of Human Trafficking in South Africa Migration, Human Smuggling and Trafficking from Nigeria to Europe
 New Paradigms, New Perspectives
 Law and the Experience of Women and Children in Africa Examining Human Trafficking and the Response of the South African Criminal Justice System
 Human Trafficking in Post-Mandela South Africa
 South Africa Against Human Trafficking
 Root Causes and Recommendations
 Human Trafficking in Post-Mandela South Africa
 Human Trafficking and Security in Southern Africa
 Tsireledzani
 Policing Global Movement
 Human Trafficking in Africa
 Human Trafficking in Southern Africa
 Human Trafficking, Human Misery
 Human Trafficking
 Human Trafficking in Eastern Cape Province, South Africa
 The African Court of Justice and Human and Peoples' Rights in Context

Human Trafficking In South Africa Unesco

Downloaded from <ftp.wtvq.com> by guest

KENDAL HODGES

A Holistic Social Work Intervention Programme for Women Survivors of Human Trafficking in South Africa
 Cambridge University Press Are women tricked into sex work? How much control do they have over their working conditions? Are sex workers able to leave if they want to? The answers to these and many other questions about the sex work industry can be found in this book. This two-year study by the Institute for Security Studies and the Sex Worker Education and Advocacy Task Force is the first complete survey and analysis of the sex work industry in a South African city, Cape Town. It analyses numbers, earnings, working conditions and various aspects of exploitation of both street-based and brothel-based sex workers, and makes recommendations on how exploitation of sex workers can be prevented. As human trafficking into prostitution is of concern both in South Africa and worldwide, the book examines and reports on the extent to which trafficking is a feature of the sex work industry in Cape Town.

A Multidimensional Approach University of Pennsylvania Press
 Women and children have been bartered, pawned, bought, and sold within and beyond Africa for longer than records have existed. This important collection examines the ways trafficking in women and children has changed from the aftermath of the "end of slavery" in Africa from the late nineteenth century to the present. The formal abolition of the slave trade and slavery did not end the demand for servile women and children.

 Contemporary forms of human trafficking are deeply interwoven with their historical precursors, and scholars and activists need to be informed about the long history of trafficking in order to better assess and confront its contemporary forms. This book brings together the perspectives of leading scholars, activists, and other experts, creating a conversation that is essential for understanding the complexity of human trafficking in Africa. Human trafficking is rapidly emerging as a core human rights issue for the twenty-first century. Trafficking in Slavery's Wake is excellent reading for the researching, combating, and prosecuting of trafficking in women and children. Contributors:
Margaret Akullo, Jean Allain, Kevin Bales, Liza Stuart Buchbinder, Bernard K.
Freamon, Susan Kreston, Benjamin N.

Lawrance, Elisabeth McMahon, Carina Ray, Richard L. Roberts, Marie Rodet, Jody Sarich, and Jelmer Vos.

Data and Research on Human Trafficking Springer

Few subjects elicit greater moral outrage than human trafficking. Media reports of dehumanizing practices such as slavery, abduction, child prostitution, and torture, along with shocking statistics, form the basis of public knowledge. Those who work closely with victims acknowledge the complexity of the issue, and it is this complexity, rather than loose statistics and conjecture, that deserves our attention. With sensitivity and candor, this book addresses the reality of human trafficking in Thailand, dissecting studies, presenting facts, and dismissing stereotypes. It focuses on the areas of fishing, agriculture, domestic work, sex work, and the trafficking of children, weaving individual narratives and official studies into the wider history of Thailand's changing economy and labor situation. It also details how the Thai government has addressed the issue, reflects on the roots of human exploitation, and suggests a way forward. This book raises much-needed awareness of commonly held misconceptions and clarifies what we know and what we have yet to discover about the trafficking of persons to and from Thailand. Highlights • Concise and accessible study of the reality of human trafficking in Thailand • Thorough critical analysis of current policies and public discourse on trafficking • Details relevant Thai and international laws • Discusses the relationship between the modern economic system and exploitation • Analyzes the changing face of the Thai labor market and the impact of industrialization on the Thai population
Hidden in Plain Sight Greenhaven Publishing LLC

In the light of the urgent need for cooperative and collaborative action against trafficking, this publication presents examples of promising practice from around the world relating to trafficking interventions. It is hoped that the guidance offered, the practices showcased and the resources recommended in this Toolkit will inspire and assist policymakers, law enforcers, judges, prosecutors, victim service providers and members of civil society in playing their role in the global effort against trafficking in persons. The present edition is an updated and expanded version of the Toolkit published in 2006.

The South African and Mozambican Experience United Nations Publications
The end of apartheid has triggered massive illegal immigration into South Africa from all parts of Africa and beyond. Along with urbanization and internal migration, the end of apartheid has encouraged human smuggling and the trafficking of men, women, and children into the commercial sex market and various sectors of the economy from mining to agriculture and the service industries. Long Walk to Nowhere analyzes the impact of these developments on Nelson Mandela's vision for a democratic South Africa.

Long Walk to Nowhere Palgrave Macmillan

The 2020 UNODC Global Report on Trafficking in Persons is the fifth of its kind mandated by the General Assembly through the 2010 United Nations Global Plan of Action to Combat Trafficking in Persons. It covers more than 130 countries and provides an overview of patterns and flows of trafficking in persons at global, regional and national levels, based primarily on trafficking cases detected between 2017 and 2019. As UNODC has been systematically collecting data on trafficking in persons for more than a decade, trend information is presented for a broad range of indicators.

A Comparative Legal Study UN

An examination of human trafficking around the world including the following countries: United States, Japan, United Arab Emirates, Thailand, Israel and the Occupied Palestinian Territories, Colombia, Iraq, Syria, Canada, Italy, France, Iran, India, Niger, China, South Africa, Australia, United Kingdom, Chile, Germany, Poland, Mexico, Russia, and Brazil.

Long Walk to Nowhere Routledge
Every day in the United States, children and adolescents are victims of commercial sexual exploitation and sex trafficking. Despite the serious and long-term consequences for victims as well as their families, communities, and society, efforts to prevent, identify, and respond to these crimes are largely under supported, inefficient, uncoordinated, and unevaluated. Confronting Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Sex Trafficking of Minors in the United States examines commercial sexual exploitation and sex trafficking of U.S. citizens and lawful permanent residents of the United States under age 18. According to this report, efforts to prevent, identify, and respond to these crimes require better collaborative approaches that build upon the capabilities of people and entities from a range of sectors. In addition, such efforts need to confront demand and the individuals who commit and benefit from these crimes. The report recommends increased awareness and understanding, strengthening of the law's response, strengthening of research to advance understanding and to support the development of prevention and intervention strategies, support for multi-sector and interagency collaboration, and creation of a digital information-sharing platform. A nation that is unaware of these problems or disengaged from solutions unwittingly contributes to the ongoing abuse of minors. If acted upon in a coordinated and comprehensive manner, the recommendations of Confronting Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Sex Trafficking of Minors in the United States can help advance and strengthen the nation's emerging efforts to prevent, identify, and respond to commercial sexual exploitation and sex trafficking of minors in the United States.

Understanding the Dimensions of Human Trafficking in Southern Africa : Research Report United Nations

There are several hundreds of thousands of Nigerians throughout Europe, half of whom live in the United Kingdom. According to this report, emigration has represented a considerable drain of highly qualified labour from Nigeria, while at the same time, the Nigerians abroad represent a substantial resource to their country of origin and they send more than a billion US dollars back to their relatives every year.

Human Trafficking in South Africa Silkworm Books

South Africa is facing serious challenges in addressing the needs of women survivors of human trafficking. Despite the government's efforts to alleviate it, trafficking in women remains a serious phenomenon in society. It operates without boundaries and grows in magnitude both on a national and transnational level (Uranbileg & Erdenechuluun, 2010:5). The environment of inequity and discrimination allows thousands of women to be trafficked each year to urban areas of South Africa and other countries for exploitation (Upadhyay, 2012:44). Trafficked women suffer intense trauma on a physical, sexual, psychological, economic, and social level. The harmful consequences of sexual exploitation are diverse and can develop into post-traumatic stress (US Department of State, 2014:33; Reda, 2012:18). However, this study confirms that South Africa lacks knowledge regarding the consequences and needs as experienced by women survivors of human trafficking, as well as the existence of an effective holistic social work intervention programme to attend to the needs of these survivors. Therefore, the absence of such a programme in South Africa means that professionals who are working in this field are not always well-equipped to render an adequate service to these survivors. It is against this background that the researcher designed and developed a holistic social work intervention programme for women survivors of human trafficking (HSWIP-WSHT). The ecological system as well as the person-centred approaches form the theoretical framework for this study. The researcher combined elements of both qualitative and quantitative research, called the mixed methods research approach. The study was exploratory and applied in nature and, more specifically, involved intervention research which utilised a design and development (D & D) model. The study focused on the first four phases of the D & D intervention research to explore the feasibility of developing a HSWIP-WSHT. Qualitative and quantitative data were gathered from selected residential shelters designed for women victims of domestic violence in the Gauteng Province. An interview schedule was utilised during the qualitative phase to collect data from 14 social service providers and 12 women survivors of human trafficking as participants. The qualitative findings and the literature review contributed to the development of the HSWIP-WSHT in South Africa. Thereafter, a pilot test was conducted by means of quantitative data collection through a one-group, pre-test post-test design by means of a questionnaire that was distributed to nine respondents. The women survivors, as the intended users of the programme, were ideal participants to determine if the holistic social work intervention programme was a feasible method for exploring the consequences of human trafficking, as well as an adequate intervention programme to attend to the needs of these women in order to improve their total well-being. The research study concluded that the developed HSWIP-WSHT is indeed feasible. However, it needs refinement, dissemination, and implementation to improve its efficiency and effectiveness. It has the potential to capacitate social workers to promote the total well-being of women survivors of human trafficking in South Africa. Certain conclusions and recommendations that are based on the outcome of this research were formulated for this specific field of practise, as well as for further research.

Tsireledzani! Univ of California Press
The movement of humans across borders is increasing exponentially—some for benign reasons, others nefarious, including terrorism, human trafficking, and people smuggling. Consequently, the policing of human movement within and across borders has been and remains a significant concern to nations. Policing Global Movement: Tourism, Migration, Human Trafficking, and Terrorism explores the nature of these challenges for police, governments, and citizens at large. Drawn from keynote and paper presentations at a recent International Police Executive Symposium meeting in Malta, the book presents the work of scholars and practitioners who analyze a variety of topics on the cutting edge of global policing, including: Western attempts to reform the policing of sex tourists in the Philippines and Gambia Policing the flow of people and goods in the port of Rotterdam Policing protestors and what happened at the 2010 G20 Summit in Toronto Mexico's use of the military in its war against drug trafficking Public-private cooperation in the fight against organized crime and terrorism in Australia Recommendations for police reform in Afghanistan Sweden's national counterterrorism unit Treatment of asylum seekers in a privately run detention center in South Africa The policing of human trafficking for the sex trade in sub-Saharan Africa, Vietnam, Australia, and Andhra Pradesh, India Examining areas of increasing concern to governments and citizens around the world, this timely volume presents critical international perspectives on these ongoing global challenges that threaten the safety of humans worldwide.

Getting to Grips with Trafficking BoD – Books on Demand

Human Trafficking of Young Women and Girls for Sexual Exploitation in South Africa.

Child Abuse and Neglect CRC Press
This book investigates the links between human trafficking and national security in Southern Africa. Human trafficking violates borders, supports organised crime and corrupts border officials, and yet policymakers rarely view the persistence of human trafficking as a security issue. Adopting an expanded conceptualisation of security to encompass the individual as well as the state, Richard Obinna Iroanya lays the groundwork for understanding human trafficking as a security threat. He outlines the conditions and patterns of human trafficking globally before moving into detailed case studies of South Africa and Mozambique. Together, these case studies bring into focus the lives of the 'hidden population' in the region, with analysis and policy recommendations for combating a global phenomenon.

Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Long Walk to Nowhere Human Trafficking in Post-Mandela South Africa

3. Complexity of Issues
Understanding Global Slavery CRC Press
The movement of humans across borders is increasing exponentially—some for benign reasons, others nefarious, including terrorism, human trafficking, and people smuggling. Consequently, the policing of human movement within and across borders has been and remains a significant concern to nations. Policing Global Movement: Tourism, Migration, Human Trafficking, and Terrorism explores the nature of these challenges for police, governments, and citizens at large. Drawn from keynote and paper presentations at a recent International Police Executive Symposium meeting in Malta, the book presents the work of scholars and practitioners who analyze a variety of topics on the cutting edge of global policing, including: Western attempts to reform the policing of sex tourists in the Philippines and Gambia Policing the flow of people and goods in the port of Rotterdam Policing protestors and what happened at the 2010 G20 Summit in Toronto Mexico's use of the military in its war against drug trafficking Public-private cooperation in the fight against organized crime and terrorism in Australia Recommendations for police reform in Afghanistan Sweden's national counterterrorism unit Treatment of asylum seekers in a privately run detention center in South Africa The policing of human trafficking for the sex trade in sub-Saharan Africa, Vietnam, Australia, and Andhra Pradesh, India Examining areas of increasing concern to governments and citizens around the world, this timely volume presents critical international perspectives on these ongoing global challenges that threaten the safety of humans worldwide.

Human Rights and Trafficking in Persons United Nations Publications
This edited volume examines the contemporary practice of human trafficking on the African continent. It investigates the scourge of human trafficking in Africa from the broader international and regional perspectives as well as from a country-specific context. Written by a multi-disciplinary panel of academics and practitioners, the book is divided into three sections that highlight a wide range of issues. Section One examines the theoretical and legal challenges of trafficking. Section Two focuses on the regional and nation-state perspectives of human trafficking along with selected cases of trafficking. Section Three highlights the impact of trafficking on youth, with specific attention given to child soldiering and female victims of trafficking. Providing a multi-faceted approach to a problem that crosses multiple disciplines, this volume will be useful to scholars and students interested in African politics, African studies, migration, human rights, sociology, law, and economics as well as members of the diplomatic corps, governmental, intergovernmental, and non-governmental organizations.

Trafficking in Human Beings, Especially Women and Children, in Africa National Academies Press

This volume takes a global perspective and uses first-hand accounts and stories to examine the problem of human trafficking in its various manifestations around the world.

Global Report on Trafficking in Persons 2020 BoD – Books on Demand

This book investigates the links between human trafficking and national security in Southern Africa. Human trafficking violates borders, supports organised crime and corrupts border officials, and yet policymakers rarely view the persistence of human trafficking as a security issue. Adopting an expanded conceptualisation of security to encompass the individual as well as the state, Richard Obinna Iroanya lays the groundwork for understanding human trafficking as a security threat. He outlines the conditions and patterns of human trafficking globally before moving into detailed case studies of South Africa and Mozambique. Together, these case studies bring into focus the lives of the 'hidden population' in the region, with analysis and policy recommendations for combating a global phenomenon.

The South African and Mozambican Experience Columbia University Press

This is a print on demand edition of a hard to find publication. The subject of human trafficking, or the use of force, fraud or coercion to transport persons across international borders or within countries to exploit them for labor or sex, has received renewed attention within the last two decades. This report provides a detailed description of the processes involved in a project to identify English language research-based literature on human trafficking; the databases searched and the keywords used to identify pertinent references; discussion of the development of the taxonomy used to categorize identified research-based journal articles, reports, and books; and the results of the categorization of the research according to the taxonomy.

Bibliography of Research-Based Literature Ohio University Press

This volume analyses the prospects and challenges of the African Court of Justice and Human and Peoples' Rights in context. The book is for all readers interested in African institutions and contemporary global challenges of peace, security, human rights, and international law. This title is also available as Open Access on Cambridge Core.