An essential guide to building transformative movements to address the challenges of our time, from one of the country's leading organizers and a co-creator of Black Lives Matter "Excellent and provocative . . . a gateway [to] urgent debates."—Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor, The New Yorker NAMED ONE OF THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR BY Time • Marie Claire • Kirkus Reviews In 2013, Alicia Garza wrote what she called "a love letter to Black people" on Facebook, in the aftermath of the acquittal of the man who murdered seventeen-year-old Trayvon Martin. Garza wrote: Black people. I love you. I love us. Our lives matter. With the speed and networking capacities of social media, #BlackLivesMatter became the hashtag heard 'round the world. But Garza knew even then that hashtags don't start movements—people do. Long before #BlackLivesMatter became a rallying cry for this generation, Garza had spent the better part of two decades learning and unlearning some hard lessons about organizing. The lessons she offers are different from the "rules for radicals" that animated earlier generations of activists, and diverge from the charismatic, patriarchal model of the American civil rights movement. She reflects instead on how making room amongst the woke for those who are still awakening can inspire and activate more people to fight for the world we all deserve. This is the story of one woman's lessons through years of bringing people together to create change. Most of all, it is a new paradigm for change for a new generation of changemakers, from the mind and heart behind one of the most important movements of our time.

How to Get the Part... Without Falling Apart! Lennex

Before Mahnaz Consolver came to the United States, she held some positive preconceived notions about the people and the lifestyles in the country. But what she found surprised her. In this memoir, Consolver shares her impressions, framed by her experiences as an immigrant, and provides ideas and solutions to maintain the United States status as the land of opportunity. In Is America Falling Apart?, Mahnaz discloses a wealth of observations and concludes with a list of lessons shes learned while living in the United States. From the moment she departed the airplane and entered the airport, Mahnazs life became a series of new and different experiences. She comments on everything American, including bathrooms, drug use, homelessness, media, television, video games, driving, wastefulness, sports, and even dogs. Through these observations, experienced by someone new to the country, Mahnaz hopes to wake up the American public and encourage them to get involved to solve the problems that threaten this land of glory.

The Children's Grief-management

Book Shambhala Publications

In the past most people assumed that hard work, dedication and perhaps a little luck was all that was needed to be successful. For many people 2020 changed that. What's worse is that we all sense that the rules of the game have changed forever but we don't have a guidebook for how to succeed in the new landscape. This is not your average business management book that bombards you with mind-numbingly boring, theoretical advice on how to start a business, how to be a successful manager, or how to overcome adversity. Instead, I take you by the hand and offer you a glimpse of a real-life small business owner's life. Whether you are a small business owner yourself, trying to juggle financial uncertainty, the COVID-19 pandemic, or the constant struggle of keeping your business afloat, then this book is for YOU! The book is both practical and inspirational with practical advice You Can Start Using Today: Focus On The Experience, Not The Outcome: understand how every single experience can benefit you in the long run. Try To Turn Tragedy Into Triumph: see the positive aspect of every negative situation and let it motivate you. Learn How To Expect The Unexpected: prepare for worst-case scenarios and learn to anticipate unexpected obstacles. Figure Out Your "WHY": finding that inner fire that keeps you up at night will supercharge your internal energy. Learn To Make Hard Decisions: quitting a dead-end job, firing a toxic employee, walking away from a bad deal, giving up on security for a risky investment. "How Can Maureen's Experience Help Me?" You are probably thinking. Through the years, I had to deal with the 2008 financial crisis that crushed my first small business, and then the Norse Peak fire, mudslides, psychotic employees and the COVID-19 pandemic, that made running my second business a constant struggle. However, I managed to get up on my feet every single time, used every obstacle as a class in business school, and have distilled my years of experience into an easy-to-follow and exciting self improvement book for aspiring or seasoned business owners.

As Grace works on a scrapbook for her mother who has dementia, she wonders if it will help her mother cling to her last memories. Tegan scraps her travel photos with an insatiable wanderlust while contemplating where her heart really belongs. Together While Living Apart One World

An account of the significant though gradual, uneven, disconnected, ad hoc, and pragmatic innovations in global financial governance and developmental finance induced by the global financial crisis. In When Things Don't Fall Apart, Ilene Grabel challenges the dominant view that the global financial crisis had little effect on global financial governance and developmental finance. Most observers discount all but grand, systemic ruptures in institutions and policy. Grabel argues instead that the global crisis induced inconsistent and ad hoc discontinuities in global financial governance and developmental finance that are now having profound effects on emerging market and developing economies. Grabel's chief normative claim is that the resulting incoherence in global financial governance is productive rather than debilitating. In the age of productive incoherence, a more complex, dense, fragmented, and pluripolar form of global financial governance is expanding possibilities for policy and institutional experimentation, policy space for economic and human development, financial stability and resilience, and financial inclusion. Grabel draws on key theoretical commitments of Albert Hirschman to cement the case for the productivity of incoherence. Inspired by Hirschman, Grabel demonstrates that meaningful change often emerges from disconnected, erratic, experimental, and inconsistent adjustments in institutions and policies as actors pragmatically manage in an evolving world. Grabel substantiates her claims with empirically rich case studies that explore the effects of recent crises on networks of financial governance (such as the G-20); transformations within the IMF; institutional innovations in liquidity support and project finance from the national to the transregional levels; and the “rebranding” of capital controls. Grabel concludes with a careful examination of the opportunities and risks associated with the evolutionary transformations underway.
