The Horizon Leans Forward Alfred Music
 "Nashotah House Ceremonial March" is based on a hymn tune, "Seminary Hymn," which Canon Joseph Kucharski wrote to commemorate the 150th anniversary of "Nashotah House" in 1992. Nashotah House is an Episcopal seminary located near the Wisconsin village of Nashotah [Nah-SHO-tah]. Robert Anello arranged the hymn tune as a concert band march in the British ceremonial style popularized by Gustav Holst, Edward Elgar, and Ralph Vaughan Williams. The full instrumentation for "Nashotah House Ceremonial March" includes a piccolo trumpet descant, but

Anello made provisions for alternative instrumentation. The piccolo trumpet and first clarinet parts have an alternate triplet-eighth note version of the sixteenth note runs leading into the final bar of the march. The march may also be performed without the following instruments: piccolo trumpet, oboe, soprano clarinet, alto clarinet, bassoon, string bass. Note: This version of the "Nashotah House Ceremonial March" score is a PDF suitable for printing and binding yourself on either letter or A4 size paper. Pass the Baton Alfred Music

Taking the Music Room beyond Engagement All too often the music classroom stifles students with one-size-fits-all curricula and repertoire. In Pass the Baton, authors Kathryn Finch and Theresa Hoover turn that paradigm on its head, offering a vision of music education that empowers students as critical thinkers who exercise voice and choice to question, discover, connect, and play like never before-in and out of the classroom. Pass the Baton offers readers a comprehensive guide to crafting engaging music lessons that transform students from passive consumers to vibrant creatives. Whether you're looking to rethink general music or overhaul your ensemble groups, Pass the Baton is chock-full of generative, actionable, and impactful tools. Finch and Hoover have drawn on deep research and years of experience in the music room to provide a guide for all music educators to create a learner-centered environment and give students the opportunity to truly own the creative process. This book is a must read for teachers who want to empower students to become self-sufficient lifelong learners. It is a guidebook for creating a vibrant classroom where student learning is the first priority. Kristin Gomez, MA, director of orchestras at Jefferson Middle School and Abingdon Elementary School As I watch my daughters grow up and be inspired by music in their lives, I read this thinking, "this is the type of music education I want for my own kids." This is a great book that reminds us that music education should be in every school in the world. George Couros, educator and author of The Innovator's Mindset Music teachers are often required to attend professional development that does not seem to relate to our performance-driven classes. We are left to figure out the applications on our own. Pass the Baton makes the connections for us in a way that empowers not only music students but music teachers. The stately and dignified nature of this march lends itself well to processions and ceremony. Composed in 1905, the march remains as refreshing a work as ever, with a full harmonic background and a timeless melody.

 Kenneth J. Alford, whose real name is Frederick J. Ricketts (1881-1945), was known as the British March King. The four marches in this collection include his most famous march, Colonel Bogey. It was used in the Academy Award-winning film Bridge on the River Kwai. This collection is made up of complete study scores based on the original published parts. It was common practice following the turn of the century for marches to be published without scores with a single part used as a type of score. It was also common for there to be many inconsistencies between parts (articulations, phrasings, dynamics). These scores contain the inconsistencies so a conductor can know exactly what the players are reading when the original parts are used.
