Teaching Music Through Performance in Band Indiana University Press

This third edition of The Marching Band Handbook updates information on all areas of the marching activity, including clinicians, clinics, directors and workshops; competitions; drum corps; fund raising; indoor guard; military bands; musicians, instruments and uniforms; music selection and sources; parades; publicity and public relations; travel arrangements; trophies, awards, gifts, medals and plaques; and twirling. It provides comprehensive lists for the director, drill designer, booster, musician, guard member and twirler—where to buy instruments or batons, the location of spring and fall competition sites, judging organizations, fund-raising organizations and ideas, clinic locations, marching band music publishers, magazines covering drum corps, twirling or band.

(Meredith Music Resource). Reading this book soon leads one to discover that band conductors are indeed fortunate to have a number of talented and accomplished leaders, who were not only willing, but enthusiastic about sharing their ideas and philosophies with younger colleagues. The result of all of this is to provide a huge "room" where everyone can gather to ask questions on all aspects of rehearsing and listen to the answers from the experts.

Bandmaster The Missouri State High School Activities Association and Its Music Program Knowledge and Attitudes of Missouri Superintendents, Principals, Activities Directors, and Music Educators The purpose of this study was to assess knowledge of and attitudes toward the Missouri State High School Activities Association and its music program held by Missouri superintendents, senior high principals, activities directors, and senior high band directors, orchestra directors, and choir directors. Furthermore, this study determined whether respondents' knowledge and attitude levels were related to position, years of educational service, size of the school in which they were employed, or geographic location of the school. A questionnaire was developed that included four sections. The first section asked for demographic data, the second section determined respondents' knowledge of the MSHSAA and its music program, the third section determined the respondents' attitudes by way of a five-option rating scale, and the fourth section allowed for comments. Questionnaires were sent to the selected personnel in all MSHSAA member schools registered to participate in interscholastic music during the 1996-97 school year. The total number of responses received was 1746, from 437 senior high schools, for an 83% response rate. Respondents represented all six personnel groups, had experience ranging from 1 year to 40 years, and were spread evenly over all four MSHSAA school size classifications and all eight geographic regions. Examination of the knowledge question responses indicated a lack of knowledge about the MSHSAA from all selected personnel, with only 5 of 19 questions answered correctly by more than half of respondents. Statistical analyses showed that administrators were more knowledgeable about the MSHSAA and its music program than were music educators. Personnel in larger schools were more knowledgeable, and personnel with more years of experience were more knowledgeable. Geographic location of the school had little effect on knowledge. Opinions were sought on present music activities and possible changes to MSHSAA music offerings. Statistical analyses showed significant differences in attitudes and opinions based on position held, size of school of employment, years of educational service, and geographic location. There was no relationship between respondents' knowledge scores and their attitudes and opinions. Comments received from respondents indicated the importance of MSHSAA music contests, a desire to improve some aspects of the contests, positive and negative views on the MSHSAA graded music list, the need for more information and communication from the MSHSAA about its music programs, and a positive feeling toward the high standards set by the MSHSAA for its activities. With warmth and humor, tuba virtuoso Harvey Phillips tells the story of his amazing life and career from his Missouri childhood through his days as a performer with the King Brothers and the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circuses, his training at the Juilliard School, a stint with the US Army Field Band, and his freelance days with the New York City Opera and Ballet. A founder of the New York Brass Quintet, Phillips served as vice president of the New England Conservatory of Music and became Distinguished Professor of Music at Indiana University. The creator of an industry of Tuba Christmases, Octubafests, and Tuba Santas, he crusaded for recognition of the tuba as a serious musical instrument, commissioning more than 200 works. Enhanced by an extensive gallery of photographs, Mr. Tuba conveys Phillips's playful zest for life while documenting his important musical legacy.

Play it from the Heart uses stories and concepts from music education as models for success. Making music together requires exceptional cooperation, and ensembles are the ultimate cooperative organizations. J. Steven Moore relates what he and his students have learned about excellence, leadership, responsibility, cooperation, and passion from being in the band. Rehearsing the Band Marquis Who's Who

This sourcebook was created to aid directors and teachers in finding the information they need and expand their general knowledge. The resources were selected from hundreds of published and on-line sources found in journals, magazines, music company catalogs and publications, numerous websites, doctoral dissertations, graduate theses, encyclopedias, various databases, and a great many books. Information was also solicited from outstanding college/university/school wind band directors and instrumental teachers. The information is arranged in four sections: Section 1 General Resources About Music Section 2 Specific Resources Section 3 Use of Literature Section 4 Library Staffing and Management

International Who's who in Music and Musicians' Directory (Woodwind Method). These excellent studies are the next step for students who have completed the advanced level method for their instrument. The full-page etudes in this series, key-centered and supported by scale and arpeggio exercises, take the student to that next level of performance wherein their accumulated skills allow them to play full-length performance pieces with a high level of musicianship and competence. As such, many states include these pieces in their all-state audition lists.

Notes from the Podium

American Choral Directors Association (ACDA) was formed in Kansas City, Missouri, on February 24, 1959, by 35 choral directors from around the United States. They aimed to create an organization that would meet the professional needs of all choir directors. To achieve this goal, they made the promotion of excellence in choral music through performance, composition, publication, research, and teaching their central purpose. In addition, ACDA strives through arts advocacy to elevate choral music's position in American society. From the original steering committee to today's leaders, this central purpose continues to drive ACDA's development. Among the ways that ACDA has promoted excellence in choral music are national and division conventions featuring the best choirs in the world, awards given to individuals who have in some way contributed to the art of choral music, state workshops and clinics, and honor choirs and commissioned works. Each generation that has passed through ACDA has left its indelible mark. The first generation built the foundation and gave ACDA its purpose. The second generation gave ACDA its independence and voice. The third generation leads the organization into a new and more globally connected world. And through it all, ACDA remains true to promoting choral music excellence.
